War News Summary. ZEPPELIN AIRSHIP RAIDS FIVE CITIES ON ENGLISH COAST

Failure of the Russian attempt to invade Hungary was announced today by the German war office. Although no official reports from Petrograd concede such reverses, they indicate the Russian advance has been brought virtually to a halt. The Russian war office says "slight progress was made near Uzkok pass and a counter attack by the Austro-German forces failed." The German report, speaking of Kozlow asserts the Russians were repulsed with large losses. The Russian report makes no claim to further progress in the Carpathians except at Uzkok pass.

STUDENT MOTORMAN BLAMED FOR WRECK

Inexperience of Street Car Employee Said to Be Cause For Death of Fourteen at Detroit.

Detroit, April 15.—To the inexperience of a student motorman is charged the death of 14 persons, ten of them women, who were killed last night in a collision between a street car and a freight train on the tracks of the Detroit, Toledo and Irontrain Railroad in western end of this city.

Twenty-eight other persons were injured, four of them so seriously that their death is believed to be certain. Early today only seven of the bodies have been identified, and it was said at the morgue some of the bodies are so terribly mutilated that their identification will be impossible.

The death list due to the collision of a Detroit, Toledo and Irontrain freight train and a crowded street car, last night, was increased to 15, 11 women and men, today when one of the injured women died in a hospital where more than a score of the victims were taken.

The flames which followed the explosion lit up the entire town. The streets were quickly filled with men, women and children. There was great excitement. It was all over in a few minutes. Lights were ordered extinguished as soon as the fire was discovered, but before they could be put out the aircraft had passed on.

The raider, coming immediately after the report today that ten German dirigibles were being equipped for concerted action against England at an early date, have caused intense excitement.

The Amsterdam Tyd reports that a Zeppelin over Ypres was disabled by fire and forced to descend at Thionville.

London, April 15.—England experienced a second Zeppelin raid last night, when a German airship made a raid over the northwestern coast in an attempt to damage shipbuilding along the river Tyne. With the exception of negligible damage to property and slight injury to two civilians the attack was fruitless.

The promptness with which the cities and towns in this part of England were plunged into darkness when the raid was before them was announced, undoubtedly prevented the infliction of greater damage. As it was some narrow escapes were reported, bombs falling near a passenger train in the north and close to shipyards in another, the results might have been serious.

Berlin Statement: Sayville, April 8.—The German war office today gave out a report on the situation in the Carpathians, dated Monday, April 11 which reads:

"The Russian attempt with the army that was before Przemska to force the invasion of Hungary, has resulted in failure. The endeavors to advance through the Lpukow and East Dulce passes were not successful, and the Russian attacks at Sztroptok and Pelsorzebeusz have definitely come to an end. The Russians consequently are attacking further to the east, but here also they were repulsed near Kozlow with heavy losses.

"The attacking strength of the Russians has visibly lengthened."

SQUAD OF BANDITS ROB FAST FREIGHT AND MAKE ESCAPE

Daring Hold-Up Men Carry Off $50,000 Worth of Silk on Automobile Near Buffalo, N. Y.

Buffalo, April 15.—A dozen bandits held up a New York Central fast freight train at Sanborne, nine miles east of North Tonawanda, early today, stripped several cars of bolted silk, valued at $50,000 and sped away in automobiles.

The bandits were armed with rifles and automatic pistols, and fired several shots at the crew. No one was injured. A posse of soldiers, mounted police and patrolmen from this city, Niagara Falls, and North Tonawanda were at the scene shortly after the hold-up, but up to a late hour this morning no arrest had been made.

After forcing the engine crew to unhook the locomotive and run it a short distance down the tracks, the engine men and the three other members of the train crew were tied up against a box car, and placed under guard of a single bandit while the others looted the merchandise cars.

Four five-ton automobile trucks were in waiting and were quickly loaded with the booty. Engineer Goff of Syracuse escaped the guard and ran his engine in safety. He made a rear end run into Suspension Bridge, eight miles away and gave the alarm. Police and armed citizens were hurried to the scene, but the robbers made good their escape.

The robbery was the most daring of its kind that has ever occurred in this section of the country, and the amount of plunder far exceeds in value the proceeds of any other train robbing in the history of eastern railroading.

PALESTINE IS NOW A GERMAN PROVINCE

London, April 15.—"Palestine is now a German province in the fullest sense of the word," says Dr. Edmund Passerback, for many years a practicing physician in Jerusalem, who was only recently released by the Turkish authorities and allowed to return to Europe.

"In Jerusalem alone," he told an interviewer who met him on his arrival, there are upwards of four thousand Russian officers, officials and physicians. Practically all the companies in the Turkish army is manned by a German officer, Djemal Pasha's staff contains only Germans.

"Typhoid fever is making dreadful ravages among the Turkish soldiers. The Germans are beginning to take advantage of this situation, and are in complete possession of the Bacteriological Institute which is turning out large quantities of anti-typhoid vaccine.

"Palestine is a ruined country today. The food supply is very low, and very resource is being turned to military purposes. The ordinary population is left helpless and hopeless. The progress of Jewish colonization has been set back many years.

"Djemal Pasha began from the very day of arrival of the Jewish Jewish colonists. One of the first acts of his administration was his arrival in the offices of the British Palestine office where he demanded the immediate surrender of all ready money. Happily, all the funds of the institution had previously been sent away to a safe place, and, maddened by this, the commander ordered the arrest of the bank's director, who, to save his head, had to become an Ottoman subject.

After the forcible expulsion of the Jews from Jaffa, Djemal Pasha ordered thirty prominent Jews of Jaffa to be brought to Jerusalem. Sixteen were freed after many days in prison; the fate of the fourteen others is unknown, despite all efforts to learn what became of them.

"Djemal Pasha threatens the confiscation of all the land property owned by Jews, but meanwhile he satisfies himself with the burning of books printed in ancient Hebrew, and the issuing of orders to the effect that the possession of Zionist literature implies if discovered, instant death by shooting.

"I will cite one of the happenings during the expulsion of the Jews from Jaffa about two and a half months ago.

An Italian steamer came to Jaffa for a stay of four hours. Immediately after its arrival Turkish policemen began to capture Jewish old men, women and children. About 700 were thus brought to the docks, and none of them were given the opportunity to take any of their belongings."

"WAR BREAD" OF GERMANY MUCH LIKE THAT MADE IN SIEGE OF PARIS IN 1870.

Berlin, April 15.—"War bread" is no new thing in this war. One of the exhibits in the "Bismarck Museum" in the Schoenhausen, where Bismarck lived, is a loaf of French bread that was baked in Paris during the siege in 1870.

It consists of materials unlike those now being used, however. It is made of French rice ordinarily used for starch and oat straw. The loaf was brought to Germany as a trophy by a German artilleryman and sent to Bismarck on the latter's 80th birthday.

STATE DEAF SCHOOL IS FIRE HAZARD TOO

Janesville Institution Is Not Only Wisconsin Institution Where Conditions Are Bad.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., April 15.—A complete equipment of automatic sprinklers is recommended for the State School for the Deaf at Delavan, in a report to the Commissioner of Insurance H. L. Ekern, made by Engineer W. C. West of the Independence Inspection Bureau of Philadelphia, which has just completed an inspection of the various state charitable and penal institutions. Other recommendations call for an entirely new system of mains for fire fighting purposes and a standard of lighting and equipment for all important buildings. The proposed electrical wiring of the institution is also endorsed by the engineers.

Numerous fire hazards were found in the buildings and recommendations for their removal are made. "We wish particularly to call your attention to the conditions existing in the basement of the industrial building," says the report, "a large supply of oils and paints is kept here, evidently because the outside oil hose is not large enough to accommodate the entire stock. If this is the case, a separate oil house should be built. Lightning rods of an inferior type and poorly installed were noted on the old school and administration buildings. A standard lightning rod equipment for all important buildings is recommended. The shingle roof on the hospital building presents a particularly bad condition, and it is recommended that it be replaced by a roof of slate, asbestos shingles, prepared roofing or a similar material.

The complete equipment of sprinklers is urged for the following buildings: New school, old school, girls' quarters, administration, kitchen and dining hall, power house, boys' quarters, gymnasium, hospital and industrial building. Sprinklers in particular must be regarded as perhaps the best form of insurance against loss of life in fire, says the report. A local fire alarm system and more fire escapes are recommended. At present only two buildings have fire escapes, from stories above the first, the industrial building and the administration building. Since many of the buildings are built together, the desirability of escape is also pointed out. The report recommends the formation of a fire brigade and regular practice by the pupils, of egress drills.

The report has been presented to the state board of control and the board has indicated its desire to make provision for the improvements recommended.

FRAUD LABOR ADS SCORED IN ASSEMBLY

Capitol Interests Mass to Down Bill For Notices of Strikes if Strikes Are Declared.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., April 15.—Labor representatives and manufacturing interests clashed before the assembly judiciary committee yesterday over the Hart and Weber bills providing against fraudulent advertisements of labor requiring notice of strikes to be given. The bills are aimed at labor centers where labor is sought, and giving damages to workers who go to another city for jobs only to find that the job is filled by a strike.

Assemblyman Hart explained that the Oshkosh chamber of commerce had advertised that several thousand men were wanted in that city. Hordes of men came and became a burden on the labor and charitable organizations, and the influx cost the city several thousand dollars. By this unnatural condition of the market he said wages for resident workers were lowered.

Carl F. Hill, Madison attorney, representing Madison labor unions, supported the bill. He explained how it penalizes the employer who falsely advertises the conditions in an industrial city, and gives cause for recovery against the employer for all reasonable expenses incurred in traveling to accept the position.
D. D. Barnes, representing Kenosha manufacturers, opposed the bill, saying a bill on the statutes already covers the situation. Mr. Bab of the Milwaukee Merchants and Manufacturers' association objected to the provision requiring notice of a strike to be included in the advertisement for outside help. The present law covers all cases of fraud and false pretenses in advertising, he said.
"Advertising a strike," he said, "gives labor organizations another club to hold over the manufacturer and employer."

FRIDAY, APRIL 30

Twenty-six Out for Oratory Honors.—Medals Will Be More Keenly Fought Than In Past Years.

That the medal winners of last year will have to work at greater odds this year, is due to the large rivalry and large number of contestants, at the high school, is a known fact. With twenty-six young men preparing for the annual medal for oratory, and four out for the original oratorical medal given by H. S. Lovejoy, there is going to be some fighting for while on the part of the various speakers the sobriety and Dearborn of their medals.

Miss Evelyn Welch, twice winner of the declamatory contests in as many years, has a chance to take the Loomis medal again and the high school medal for oratory.

Three will speak on the 30th of this month, and the winner will be Victor Hemming, last year. A number are trying for the Mahoney medal in poetry. In every event it will be necessary to hold elimination contests.

LAST GAME OF SEASON

The Company B team wants revenge and they declare they will have it Friday night at the rink.

LAKOTAS WOULD PLAY EDGERTON ON SATURDAY

On hearing that the Edgerton basketball team wished a game with the Lakotas this morning, Manager George Caldwell declared that the Lakotas would play the Tobacco City five on the coming Saturday night if sufficient inducements are assured. The Edgerton team is composed of a larger part of the members of the Wisconsin Reserve five, having Chandler, Davy and Meyer, with McIntosh, Carlson filling the other positions. On the small Edgerton court the Lakotas would have to show their worth to beat the varsity bunch.
It is not certain what the Fond du Lac team will be on Friday night, whether the Fond du Lac team will play at center. The Lakotas are hoping Hawkins will be in the game as they do not hold fear of the giant. In last season's game Hemming scored eleven points for him through his slow work in a game at Fond du Lac.

TIMOTHY TAYLOR IS VICTIM OF DROWNING

Former Janesville Resident Drowned at Dubuque, Iowa, on Tuesday Afternoon.

Timothy Taylor, age 66 years, who until last year resided in Janesville, and was a brother of the late Mrs. Sanborn, met death when he fell from a launch into the Mississippi river at Dubuque, Iowa, on April 13th. The accident occurred when Mr. Taylor boarded a small boat at the water's edge, for an unknown reason, and it is supposed he was seized with a heart affection and fell into the water. A woman living near the river witnessed the drowning and with aid dragged the body from the river, too late to save the victim's life. Mr. Taylor was engaged in the cigar business during the last few years in Dubuque and was connected with several hotels in the Iowa city. He leaves a wife and daughter, Mrs. Hugh Corrance, both of Dubuque.

PETEY DINK—THE ABSENT-MINDED LADY CERTAINLY LANDS A WALLOP TO HIS SELF-RESPECT.

NEWELL AND COX HAVE A THRILLER IN DEATH WHEEL

Local Men to Furnish Death Defiant Motorcycle Riding Apparatus to Fairs This Fall.

Something new in the line of thrillers will be shown at numerous fairs in the vicinity of Janesville this year. The motorcycling with its high sloping side is being compared with the contraptions to be built by C. H. Cox and Archie Newell of this city.

The local men plan a perpendicular motorcycling and are contemplating placing a number of these in commission during the late summer and fall. Heine Lange of Muscatine, Ia., will be the sensational rider in one dome and two other cyclists, probably local daredevils, will ride on the other perpendicular tracks.

A fair conception of what the perpendicular motorcycling is can be gained by imagining the bottom taken out of a large cattle tank as is common on all farms. On the interior, just at the edge of a narrow path or track, the rider gradually speeds up on the track and rises on the path until both machine and he are speeding at a rate of ninety miles an hour parallel to the ground.

But of a more gravity and eternally defying contraption is the "Wheel of Death." This is similar in construction to the above described motorcycling as far as the track is concerned, but is radically more dangerous. In this case an apparatus is used which gradually elevates the riding track until it is hoisted to a position at right angles from which it lay on the ground.

Imagine the cattle tank without the bottom gradually raised from one side, the opposite being securely hinged, until it stands on a fair idea as to its nature can be obtained. Furthermore, while this monstrous hoop is being elevated imagine a motorcycling and rider whirling inside at a dizzy pace.

"The Whirl" will not be seen at the fairs, however, this year. Mr. Cox and Mr. Newell originated the idea such a short time ago that it has been impossible to secure the apparatus of the nature they desire, for the safety of their riders.

A wooden structure and tower has been built and tested at an angle of sixty-five degrees, but the strain was so great on the first apparatus that it has been decided to construct the next one of steel, firmly braced and strong.

Heine Lange experimented with the wooden wheel and it was that speeded about the twenty-foot circle on the four-foot path while it was being tipped up to the angle of sixty-five degrees.

Both Mr. Newell and Mr. Cox are confident of the success of the wheel and are only hesitating as to the time it has been impossible to use it this year. Numerous inquiries from fair board secretaries and others interested in such exhibits assure that it will be a money making proposition.

THEY LIKE THEIR NICKNAMES BEST.

Please call us by our nicknames.

That's the request of many a ball player. For many ball players are better known by their nicknames than they are by their given names.

For instance, there's McInnis. Everybody knows him as "Stuffy" and few fans are aware without looking it up that Stuffy's first name is John.

"Shag" is the nickname of A. T. Thompson of the Athletics.

"And never call me anything else but Shag," says Thompson. "Just because some chaps who wanted to give me a job as coach went around looking for A. T. Thompson and found none, they called me Shag. I nearly lost the place."

"Everybody knows me better as Shag than by any initials or other first name."

ASSOCIATION LEAGUE GETS FLYING START

American Association Circuit Makes Bow to Season Today. Teamers Are Improved.

(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, April 15.—Another baseball league today made its 1915 bow for public favor. The American Association got under way today. On the heels of the National and American League debuts of yesterday.

Although harassed by the Feds to some extent, the Association was regarded as much stronger than last year. The strongest Fed rivalry was between Kansas City, although the Kaw-Feds lost money last year.

The Association's opening games today were: Louisville at Columbus, Indianapolis at Cleveland, Minneapolis at Milwaukee and St. Paul at Kansas City.

The Milwaukee brewers, 1914 champions, were again picked to be one, two, three this year. Mike Troutman's Millers were also much strengthened.

The situation at Indianapolis was improved over last year, when the Fed team there won the pennant and the Louisville Colonels were generally picked at the runners-up in the opening race, with the Saints again picked to fight out the cellar championship with Kansas City or Cleveland.

Instead of long distance pool room recreation, eastern race fans will today get their first glimpse of padlocking and betting when the northern spring racing season opens at the Havre De Grace track. An unusually stellar string of horses is entered for the big stakes, which are more popular annually. The races of Baltimore and Washington are particularly strong for the Havre De Grace course and excursion trains from both cities are generally crowded.

CUBS RUN WILD AND BEAT ST. LOUIS IN OPENER 7-2

Chicago, April 15.—Speedy baserunning and St. Louis' numerous errors gave Chicago so many runs that Vaughn's pitching task was easy, and the opening game of the season was to the locals 7 to 2. Not until the eighth inning did Vaughn permit a visitor to reach third base. He struck out Halcyon Huggins, who was poorly supported and tripped by Fisher and Archer. A double by Archer helped in the rout of the Cardinals. Long's three base hit was the main factor in scoring the St. Louis runs.

The usual ceremonies preceded the game.

Play 13 Innings.

St. Louis, Mo., April 15.—Chicago and St. Louis opened the American League season here on Wednesday by a thirteen inning game which visitors won, 7 to 2. In the last inning Fournier's triple brought in Birch and Schalk, who had singled.

On the following out Fournier scored.

In the same inning St. Louis also took on new life and scored twice, but fell a run shy of tying the score again.

TWO BEST HEAVYWEIGHTS TO BATTLE IN NEW YORK DURING MONTH OF MAY.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, April 15.—Al Reich and Jim Coffey, two of New York's foremost challengers, will get together in the ring with the champion as referee some time in May, if statements by their respective managers, issued today count for anything.

Max Blumenthal, Reich's manager, stated it all with a statement saying Coffey was running away from his ambitious young heavyweight and proposed a match with Willard as third man, so that the champion might be in a good position to see Reich put Coffey to rest.

Billy Gibson came right back in Coffey's behalf. He even went Reich and Blumenthal one better by proposing to have Carl Morris, Jim Flynn and all white heavyweight who donned a glove, there to see the beating, he says Reich is slated for.

The match probably will be arranged for Madison Square garden.

MORRIS MILLER

"I believe I have the best conditioned ball club that ever started in a pennant race," recently remarked Manager Fielder Jones of the St. Louis Feds. "Even if I have to say it myself, I think my team is a first division club in its league."

They carry only eighteen men. They will be Chapman and Hardie, catchers; Groves, Devereport, Plank, Crandall, Watson and Johnson, pitchers; orton, Bridwell, Johnson, and Vaughn, infielders; W. Miller, Marsans, Tobin and Drake, outfielders. And that is enough. It's all I had with the White Sox.

Chicago boxing fans see a ray of hope for the fight game in the Windy City, now that W. H. Thompson has been chosen mayor. Thompson is strong for the fight game.

Boxing in Chicago would be great if we could have it governed under laws which prevail in New York and Wisconsin, says a local sportsman.

Boxing legislation now is being introduced to pass a boxing bill that will permit ten-round bouts.

Brooklyn students are reported to be up in arms because Dean Sturgis is a substitute teacher for the Athletics last year has been elected captain of the football eleven. There have been incidents of professional players and athletes but that is about the limit for open acceptance by an athletic board. Sturgis did not figure in the official averages, but he is named in the Baseball Guide as on the roster of the Athletics for 1914.

An effort is being made to match George Chalmers with Young Ahearn, the clever Brooklyn middleweight. Manager Dime and McEttrick have talked the match over and agreed to stage it before the club offering the best inducements.

Ray Caldwell has announced his 1915 baseball ambition, and Bill Donovan has put the stamp of hearty approval on the aims and hopes of the Yankees' star boxman. Caldwell firmly believes that he can turn in twenty-five victories to the credit of the New York team, and this is the target that he will shoot at. At the same time he declares that he has an outside chance of registering thirty victories.

Nineteen hundred and fourteen wasn't the only tough season on champagne. The hoodoo which began to operate for the titleholders around this date last season is still at work. In fact, someone says the time it will soon be impossible to get a champ to make a competitive appearance unless surrounded by a steel cage.

Pitcher Ollie Kirkmeyer, has fallen heir to Hickory Johnson's uniform with the Giants. Dick Kinsella hated to see Hickory go to St. Paul or any other place, but gets some consolation out of the fact that another Three-graduate gets his suit.

The Detroit Tigers are offering prayers of thanks because they play eight of their first twelve games with Joe Birmingham's Cleveland Indians. They figure that inasmuch as Cleveland finished a miserable last in 1914 they will be easy picking this spring.

In fact, Huggins' Jennings is banking on winning at least six of the eight contests while some of the "cocky" Tigers are claiming seven victories.

Outfielder Jimmy Johnston of the Cubs goes back to the Pacific coast, where he won his fame as a base stealer. He does not return to San Francisco, however, but to Oakland. Bresnahan may recall him in the fall after the twenty-one men limit passes.

The Chicago White Sox have taken an option on Pitcher John Couch, a youngster with the San Francisco team. It is stated to be part of the deal for Ping Bodie. The story that Comiskey paid San Francisco to take Bodie off his hands is thus exploded.

The St. Louis Cardinals, with Ham Hyatt on their list, will be about the only team in the National league to enjoy the luxury of a pinch hitter this year. McGraw of the Giants, however, will manage to keep a pinch runner for Jack Meyers, even if he has to sacrifice a utility outfielder.

Manager Roger Bresnahan has been practicing in the infield lately, and explains it by saying he intends to be his own utility man this season. St. Louis fans who saw Roger play second base with the Cardinals are willing to admit that as an infielder is a great handler of pitchers.

The Giant Among Tires

Last year we sold 1,479,883 Goodyear pleasure car tires alone—about one for each car in use.

Yet Goodyear has some hundred rivals. How came this tire to dominate like that?

This is the reason: In the years before we sent into service millions of Fortified Tires. And these tires, by their records, sold the tires of last year. You know that's the only reason.

Supremacies

In at least five ways these tires excel all others. Each way is costly and important. Each is exclusive to Goodyear Fortified Tires.

These ways combat rim-cut, blowouts, loose treads. They combat insecurity, punctures and skidding, as in no other tire that's built.

We spend millions on them, but they save our users more millions. They have made these the super-tires.

We spend millions on them, but they save our users more millions. They have made these the super-tires.

3 Price Cuts

In two years we have made three price reductions, totaling 45 per cent. The last was on February 1st. Thus every saving, due to mammoth output or other reasons, is promptly passed on to our users.

Yet the tires grow better as prices come down. We spend $100,000 yearly in seeking new ways to improve them.

You owe yourself a trial of such tires. Any dealer will supply you. (2288)

THE GOOD JUDGE DIDN'T THINK THE SHERIFF COULD DO IT.

ALL bets are off when it comes to the Real Tobacco Chew. Might as well fork over at once. It's the only thing of its kind and a kind that's so good you just naturally can't keep it to yourself.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary coarsely cut tobacco makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

LINCOLN.

Fifty years ago the nation sorrowed at the death in Washington of Abraham Lincoln, a man second to none as a public official the world has ever known. Today, half a century after his death, the nation honors his memory. The flags on all federal buildings are at half mast. The work of the government has been suspended as far as possible, and even private corporations have set the example of placing the nation's emblem at the half mast on their flag poles.

"For four years his steady hand, directed by a master mind and a great good heart, piloted the nation through the storms of a great war to permanent domestic peace," says the Milwaukee Sentinel.

"During those four years Abraham Lincoln grew in the love and respect of the loyal people of the nation, so that at the end of the war he occupied a distinctive position as the greatest and grandest character of his day."

"Because of his invaluable service in saving the Union, and laying the foundation for a better country, and of a simple grandeur of character that appeals to humanity in the mass, Abraham Lincoln has found his way to the hearts of a greater number of people throughout civilization than any other man or public official concerning whom history speaks. His memory is revered by untold millions, and every year he grows greater and greater in the minds of the millions."

"While Mr. Lincoln, when the hand of murder struck him down, had completed his greatest work, he was needed in other great work, that of national reconstruction. The reconstruction record, however, was not very different had Mr. Lincoln been permitted to serve out his second term. The south had no better friend at the end of the war, and throughout the war, than the nation's war president, and he would have shown his friendship and his statesmanship in such reconstruction as would have given satisfaction to both the north and the south. That would have prevented the years of bitterness that existed between the two sections."

"It is well that the people of this nation who are so greatly indebted to Abraham Lincoln, should, upon this anniversary, give thought to his services for them and future generations, and renew their vows of devotion to the Union that was saved under his leadership, and pledge continued, and, if possible, better service to it and its institutions."

THE WILHELMINA CASE.
One of the significant decisions of the present war has been the settlement of the much disputed Wilhelmina case. In handling this situation it would seem as if the British government has sought to avoid two things: First, to avoid offense to this country, and second, not to establish through a mere court decision a more precise ruling as to when foodstuffs become contraband of war. So resort is had to ancient rule of angaria. The Wilhelmina voluntarily came into British jurisdiction, and her cargo is requisitioned under the rule that permits a belligerent to purchase for military uses such property.

It must not be forgotten that, although in the present war it is to the immediate interest of Great Britain to stop food going to Germany, Great Britain in the past has been opposed to making food contraband. In some future war Great Britain might find it gravely to her disadvantage to have food contraband, for she is dependent on outside supplies. Secondly, it would embarrass British shipping, during wars to which Great Britain is not a party, to have her ships liable to capture when carrying food to belligerents. It is greatly to be doubted whether permanent British interests are served by interference with food shipments.

Sea law represents a mixture of abstract right and national self-interest, and both of these have tugged at the British government not to unequivocally adopt French rule with respect to food.

ARE INTERESTED.

Directly or indirectly every citizen of the state is intensely interested in the work of the state legislature. There are simple little bills, appearing most insignificant in wording, that if they become laws will create wonderful results. There are mighty problems of state economy introduced by the administration, to lessen the taxes, to cut down state expenses and simplify the administration of government that are being opposed bitterly by office-holders. As was stated at a hearing on the agricultural bill on Tuesday: "Every little office-holder who feels his job is in jeopardy is constituting himself a special advocate of the opposition and by various methods seeks to poison the minds of the public as to the real merits of the bills." These are strenuous days at Madison. The legislature is very much in earnest to complete its work and return home. They want their work well done, however, and would not shrink the responsibility even at a personal loss. The efforts of the "skim milk" referendum on the spring election day, has proven such an absurd proposition that it is even reacting in favor of the administration and the measures they propose. Governor Philipp and his advisors are going over their work carefully. They are neglecting no part of the plan to bring about a consolidation of various state commissions and boards into compact business organization for the betterment of government both by a reduction of expenses and by increasing the efficiency of the state employees. It is not with any idea of building up a political machine that is being done, but to promote the efficiency, and the better they will be prepared to judge the class of the opposition who are trying to stem the tide of reforming the reformers by legal enactments.

Senator Paul Hustling has returned to Wisconsin to fight for what he considers his political interests. Senator La Follette has come east to make money on the chautauqua platform during the early spring months. However the state is still safe and there is no fear of any political upheaval by the presence of Hustling in our midst.

Hardly a day passes but press dispatches announce that due to the efficiency of fire drills and fire factories, many lives were saved. Why the idea of holding fire drills should be discouraged by some educators is hard to discover when its worth is so apparent.

It will soon be spring clean-up day. Meanwhile the various property-owners can accomplish much themselves by starting work earlier and being ready for the time when Janesville will enter the "city beautiful" class and summer days arrive.

Official Washington is stirred to the core by the suit brought by the Riggs bank of that city against the federal treasury. It promises to bring about some interesting developments if the preliminary tales are to be judged as what is to follow.

The "swat the fly" idea is certain to work wonders if properly followed out and it is to be hoped that more entries will be received in the lists of the fly hunters who are making weekly reports at the city library.

Gradually the lakes and streams are freeing themselves of ice and with the trout season open the fishermen can begin preparing their tackle for the big fishes that always get away.

So Huerta is going to re-enter Mexico and boldly announces the fact in New York. How about the thoughts of "Watchful Waiting" on this interesting subject?

The Arkansan.
He gets up to the alarm of a Connecticut clock, buttons his Chicago suspenders to Chicago overalls; washes his face with Cincinnati soap in a Pennsylvania pan; sits down to a Grand Rapids chair; eats Chicago meat and Tennessee flour, cooked with Kansas lard on a St. Louis stove; puts a New York bride on a Kentucky mule; feeds with Iowa corn; plows a farm covered with an Ohio mortgage, with a Chattanooga plow; when bedtime comes he reads a chapter from a Bible printed in Boston, says a prayer written in Jerusalem, crawls under a blanket made in New Jersey, only to be kept awake by an Arkansas dog—the only home product on his place.—Arkansas Democrat.

How to Bathe the Baby.
Many fathers stand aloof from their domestic duties and it should not be so. When called upon to bathe the baby they should be ready to do so with neatness and eclat.
Fill the bathtub full of water, after first having removed all of the germs with tweezers. Put your elbow in occasionally to see if the water is the right temperature. If ice forms on your elbow you will know the water is too cold. If there are blisters, then it is too warm.

Take the baby by both feet and shake him loose from his flannel moorings until you begin to see safety pins ahead. Then remove the safety pins with nippers and unroll until the baby looks in sight.

Now, having put on your rubber coat, put one hand firmly under baby's chest and the other on his back and launch him into the still water. When he has kicked all the water out of the bathtub, renew as before.

SURPRISED ON 80TH BIRTHDAY; CAME TO WISCONSIN IN BUGGY

Mrs. S. J. Dockstadter of La Prairie is Pioneer of Rock County—Her Father Built First Local Bridge.

Mrs. S. J. Dockstadter, one of Rock county's oldest settlers, was tendered a celebration last evening at her home in the town of La Prairie, in honor of her eightieth birthday. The occasion was a surprise for the aged woman. The Congregational church choir of Shopiere was in La Prairie attending the event, and sang many selections. A social time was held during the evening.

Dockstadter came from the east to Rock county at the age of three years, riding at the way in a buggy with her mother and two men, one of them being Lucius Burnham. Her father came on ahead of them, and bought land which is now owned by James Chamberlain, Jr. The land is located in the town of Bradford and was bought by the senior Chamberlain in 1838. James Chamberlain, Jr., is the father of Mrs. James Mills of Janesville. His father, shortly after coming west from Connecticut, built the entire family came from, built a bridge over Rock river in this city, and was the first bridge ever constructed here over the Rock.

Mrs. Dockstadter lives on the same farm today that was purchased by her husband at the age of three years. She is enjoying good health. Along with the celebration last evening, about seventy friends sent her post cards yesterday.

GOT MONEY TO LOAN? VIRGINIA NEEDS IT

Commonwealth's Treasury is Empty and April Bills Are Not Being Paid.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Charleston, W. Va., April 15.—Governor Hatfield, in a statement issued here today, declares West Virginia needed $750,000 to carry on its government and he could not legally borrow this amount, as suggested by Attorney General Lilly, because the state would be unable to repay it within eighteen months, the statutory time.

Because of the failure of the late legislature to pass the necessary appropriation, salaries and many other bills for April are not being paid.

The governor conferred with five senators who supported his financial plea, with a view to calling another special session of the legislature to provide the necessary revenue.

Milwaukee Man Thought Dead Meets Wife on Way for Insurance—Faces Abandonment Charge.

Milwaukee, April 15.—Mourning is dead and buried in a potter's field. Andrew Kulski became very much alive when brought into court today with a strange tale of identification.

The denouement came through Kulski's arrest on the charge of abandonment.

Believing her husband dead, Mrs. Kulski, armed with a certificate of death and document of burial, and on her way to obtain her husband's life insurance, received the greatest surprise of her life. She met her husband and he was walking on two perfectly good feet.

To make sure that there was no acceptance Mrs. Kulski accosted him. He denied he was her husband and poured forth much abuse upon her. Mrs. Kulski then was certain he was the man she had married.

At the foot of Lake street and was taken to the morgue where it was identified Monday afternoon as that of Andrew Kulski, by a brother of Mrs. Kulski. Morgue officials accepted the identification and gave out a statement that the body was that of Kulski.

Mrs. Kulski obtained the proper certificates from the coroner, and went down town to obtain the insurance. On Grand avenue she met her husband.

Heat Through Friction. Heat is developed in almost any substance which is subjected to continuous or very violent friction. It is an old trick for a blacksmith to forge without fire. Long-continued and violent hammering on two pieces of wire will heat them to such an extent that they can be welded together.

Being without money and friends, the accused was assigned an attorney by the court. Despite his lawyer's efforts a conviction resulted. Calling the convicted man before him, the judge asked: "Have you anything to say before I pass sentence?" "Yes, your honor. It looks to me like some people around here—namely no names—are in cahoots. I'm not forgetting who inflicted that lawyer on me."

FLAGS ARE LOWERED THROUGHOUT NATION TO HONOR LINCOLN

Observe Fiftieth Anniversary of Martyred President's Death—Local Office Closed During Afternoon.

Today is the fiftieth anniversary of the death of Abraham Lincoln, the first martyred president of the United States. Flags were lowered to half mast on government buildings throughout the land upon the order of Secretary Burleson of the post-office department, and the hours of postal service were shortened as far as possible.

In Janesville the four o'clock delivery was suspended and all department stores at the postoffice were closed this morning between the hours of one-thirty and five o'clock. The flags over all public buildings in the city flew at half mast today, the first time in the nation's history that the anniversary of a president's death has been observed in this fashion with special orders from Washington.

Observance at Washington.

Washington, April 15.—Business of the United States government virtually was suspended today in recognition of the fiftieth anniversary of the death of Abraham Lincoln.

In the nation's capital, as elsewhere throughout the country and in foreign lands where the American government is represented, the event was being observed in accordance with President Wilson's executive order. The president himself laid aside the care of office, as did other officials of the government, to pay silent tribute to the memory of the martyred president.

By direction of the president all governmental departments closed for the day.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH RAISES FUND

In response to the call for contributions for the relief of Christian Scientists in distress by reason of the present war in Europe, the sum of $82,104.02 has been received by the treasurer of The Mother Church.

Of this amount $77,598.51 has been disbursed to the relief of Christian Scientists in Europe and in England, Germany, France and Switzerland, as called for by them. Much gratitude has been expressed by the Christian Scientists in these countries for the help extended to them by their brethren in America, says the Monitor.

In addition to the $82,104.02 collected for the relief of Christian Scientists, there has also been collected the sum of $29,154.90 for the relief of war sufferers other than Christian Scientists. This entire amount has been disbursed to relief committees of Christian Scientists in Holland, England, Germany, France and Switzerland.

The total amount received to date for these two funds is $111,258.92, of which $4,508.51 remains unexpended. As the need for help continues, this small balance will not last long; therefore Christian Scientists are given the opportunity to continue to send contributions to the treasurer of The Mother Church for this relief work.

For the future it is proposed to maintain but one fund, and from this both Christian Scientists and others will be helped.

On Sunday next the First Church of Christ Scientists of Janesville will take up their third collection for this fund.

HOW TO HELP WITHOUT MONEY.

One of the most pitiful things to me about the "submerged tenth" is their helplessness even to be helped. Many of those who most painfully need the assistance of the charitable organizations mean especially for them cannot take advantage of this assistance because they lack the education and familiarity with affairs to find out about them and use them.

For instance, I once lived in a city where there was a free dental clinic for children. The woman who drove away a wolf with a washboard. My washerwoman was a widow who was trying to keep her family of three small children together by transforming a thousand dirty garments or tubs into clean ones. Pennies come slowly and painfully out of the wash as cheerful as if she weren't trying to drive away a very vicious wolf with no better weapon than a wooden washboard, appeared looking rather than hearted.

I asked her the reason. "My littlest girl got dreadful toothache. I take her to the dentist, but I can't get any money to pay him. I don't know what I shall do."

"But Olga, there's a place in town where you can get your little girl's teeth fixed for nothing."

A light flashed across her tired face, then went out.

"I hear something about that," she said dully, "but I don't know where it is and I don't know how to get there. I can't read the signs on the cars and a half for Gretchen's teeth and I ain't got it."

You can imagine how delighted I was with the privilege of seeing that Olga and her little girl found the free clinic and if you have ever had the pleasure of helping anyone as genuine as this heroine of the washboards you can imagine how touchingly sincere her gratitude was.

Just the other day a woman told me that she had helped a poor woman whose husband was in jail to get help from the city. She had no right to this relief but she did not know enough of our customs to apply for it and she had been struggling along by herself on the verge of starvation for two months.

It seems to me that this is one of the ways and mine—to acquaint ourselves with all the agencies that help people and, when an opportunity comes, to go out of our way to bring the need and the supply together.

We may not be in a position to give much money to those whom the accident of birth or circumstance has given lives of unpeppery toll and deprivation, but we can help justify our own comfortable lives by giving them all the benefit of our greater knowledge.

If there is no get-together bureau in your town (I am so disappointed that no one has taken this suggestion of mine and written me about it) we can constitute ourselves one.

Prof. Lewis B. Allyn

"The Pure Food Town"

Macaroni About Macaroni.

Q. Does it make any difference if macaroni is put on to cook in cold water or in boiling water?

A. Yes, a much more palatable and nutritious product is obtained by cooking the macaroni in rapidly boiling salted water. Not less than a quart of water should be used to a quarter of a pound of macaroni.

Q. On an exclusive diet of macaroni such as some Italians have, do men and women develop as great capacity for work as those who have a more varied and mixed diet?

A. The Italians do not live exclusively upon macaroni. They supplement this and other edible pastes with a generous assortment of fruits, oils and vegetables, and eggs, cheese, etc.

Q. It is as far from the truth to say that the Italians live on macaroni as to say that the New Englanders live on pie.

A. A mixed diet chosen with reference to the individual and his work is generally productive of the best results.

Q. How to know Pure Butter.

Q. Will you please tell the tests for pure butter, and also if pure butter when melted has an odor to it that smells putrid, or have been in contact with butter in bulk and find when heating it to a melting point for sauce making, there is a most disagreeable odor arises from it. I do not think it has ever been that way with other butter in print or rolls from a home-made source.

A. A genuine butter might give off a disagreeable odor provided it was rancid, or had been kept in a place where it has absorbed disagreeable odors. The following are the tests which can be easily applied by the housewife in distinguishing pure butter.

1st.—A quantity of butter the size of a lima bean be melted in an iron spoon the melted substance will sink off a large quantity of foam if it belongs to the renovated type, it will spatter like hot grease with water in it, or if it is oleomargarine there will be practically no foam whatever.

2nd.—If the sample is half a cupful of sweet milk in a tin cup and heat nearly to boiling, add a tablespoonful of the suspected butter and stir with a small flattened stick until the fat is entirely melted. Place the cup in a small basin of ice water and continue stirring until the fat solidifies.

3rd.—If the sample is fresh butter, the fat cannot be collected, but is more or less emulsified with the milk.

4th.—If the sample is oleomargarine, the fat can be collected into a lump.

5th.—If the sample is renovated butter, it will tend to collect as a film on the surface of the milk when the stirring stick is lifted. It does not clot together like oleomargarine, but usually sticks to the wooden rod.

6th.—If the sample is oleomargarine, the fat can be collected into a lump.

7th.—If the sample is renovated butter, it will tend to collect as a film on the surface of the milk when the stirring stick is lifted. It does not clot together like oleomargarine, but usually sticks to the wooden rod.

Candied Sweet Potatoes—Peel and have sufficient sweet potatoes; put in frying pan; cover with water; add one cup brown sugar and one-half cup butter; cook on top of stove.

Sauerkraut, Pork and Dumplings—Select a meaty piece of back bone, which is a reasonable price, and cook until tender remove from kettle, rub with fat and brown in moderate oven. Put sauerkraut in pork broth and boil one hour. Make light dumplings using one part flour to two parts baking powder, pinch of salt, enough milk to make soft; batter, pour in well greased tin and steam one hour over sauerkraut and gravy.

Stuffed Knuckle of Veal—Cover a knuckle of veal with cold water, let simmer two hours, then add one bay leaf, six cloves, salt and pepper to taste, and cook until tender. Remove from water and let simmer another hour. As long, slow cooking is necessary, a fireless cooker is the ideal thing. Remove all the meat from the bones and chop or cut into small pieces. Boil the liquor down to a quart; to it add two tablespoonsful of sharp vinegar. Place in bowl or mold until cold, then slice and serve with crisp lettuce and a small piece of cold meat and salad.

Chicken a la Creole With Rice—Chicken cleaned and plucked. Remove meat from bones, saving latter for soup. Dip each piece of chicken in olive oil and then in flour. Place in baking dish, season well and add tomatoes, finely ground green peppers and onion. Pour over whole sufficient cold water to cover, add small pieces of butter and cover. Bake slowly in moderate oven four hours, then uncover and broil, or move from oven and over the top place tiny rice balls made by mixing grated cheese and cooked rice and well beaten egg together and forming into balls. Place in oven, brown in deep fat. This with a dessert makes a complete meal and is very nourishing and comparatively inexpensive.

Swiss Steak—Sear a two-pound porterhouse or tenderloin on both sides in a hot skillet. Remove to platter and dust thickly with flour. Place in a casserole with a small piece of suet. Mix one chopped onion with salt and pepper and place this dressing over one-half of the meat, fold the other half over. Add a little butter. Thicken the gravy and serve from the casserole.

Glimpses of Married Life

By MRS. EVA LEONARD

Dick had not come to the farm to see Sunday. Nell, but had sent a letter of explanation. It read:

"Dear Little Wife: I may not be able to get away in time to catch the noon train to-morrow, but he sure I shall come as soon as possible. You see, Miss Rudolph is going away on her vacation next week and there is quite a good deal of work to finish up. I send this fearing I cannot make it. Lovingly, Dick."

"It's always Miss Rudolph in some form," thought Nell bitterly. "As she is going away perhaps he wanted Saturday and Sunday with her."

Nell knew they were never seen together now. Dick had had a talk with her, had explained that his care for her good name would not permit him to be seen with her, and they were better friends than ever. Nell would never have consented to come to the farm if she had not thought Miss Rudolph was to leave the same week. Then her vacation was suddenly postponed, and now Dick had missed his train.

"Come to supper, daughter," called Father Morton, outside her door. Please excuse me tonight, I am not hungry, father dear, called Nell, feeling utterly unable to face anyone.

"Dick is not sick, eh?" asked the old man kindly.

"No, just too busy to get away," she answered.

She sat down by the open window and dropped her head on her arm. This was their first separation and she had counted the days till Sunday, never dreaming that Dick could fail to come.

"He could have come if he had wanted to. He planned to miss the train," she sobbed. "He didn't care if he could do this when I am far from well, when we have been married so short a time. What can the future hold for me but the place of an unwed wife, living a humdrum life, with no love's wages for my work?"

She thought of all the married people she knew and decided that most of the wives were doing just that.

"Here's a cup of tea, Nell. You drink it, and eat this toast. You'll feel better," I want Richard to think we've taken good care of you when he comes," Mrs. Morton set the tray down on the table by the window. It had been daintily prepared.

"Oh, I didn't want you to go to all that trouble, mother dear. I really wasn't hungry."

"Now you aren't going to mope, are you?" The old lady bent anxiously over Nell and peered into her face.

Experience teaches a lot of things we never cared to learn.—Judge.

ANIMAL SCHOOL.

One day Adolphus Alligator said, "I'll tell you what; Support me, we won't go to school today because it is so hot. Let's all go down to Joneses' pond and have a swim instead. Then we will tell Professor Crab that we were sick in bed."

Said Dora Duck, "Of course I'll go!" Dan Dog said, "I will, too!" And Billie Beaver said, "I think it will be fun to do." And Freddie Fish said, "Count on me, I'll be nice and cool; Although I know the proper place for fishes is in school."

So off they went to Joneses' pond to spend a pleasant day; But as it happened things turned out quite another way; For old Professor Crab said, "Ha! mean to go out quick! Why all these pupils stayed away; I can't believe they're sick."

Then he set off across the field and very soon he heard Them splashing. Said he, "They are in swimming on my word!" They were so busy playing round and shouting in their fun, Professor Crab slipped in the pond unseen by anyone.

He first seized Daniel Dog, and said, "Come on, get out of here!" And led him shivering up the bank, held firmly by the ear. The other animals were all so scared they couldn't run, And so the old Professor captured every single one.

And then they all began to cry as loud as loud could be, Professor Crab said, "Stop at once, you're wet enough," said he. "In order that you may get dry," he told that shivering row, "You'll do arithmetic; that is the driest thing I know."

And so those animals were forced to add and multiply Until Professor Crab was sure that they were good and dry; And so he took them back to school, and I am pleased to say That none of them has ever once played hooky since that day.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl deeply in love. My lover does not seem to care for me and he has broken my heart many times. I really love him and am willing to do anything for him.

I have stayed away from many good times just for him. And because I have stayed away from many good times just for him, I am afraid that maybe I offended him in my last letter, but as I wrote last I do not care to send another. Can you please tell me a way to find out what the trouble is? He has one of my pins and I want it. I am afraid of offending him if I ask for it. What shall I do? BASHFUL ALICE.

The young man has found other things more interesting than the correspondence. You may get a letter later. Wait for it. As for the pin, you have been able to get along without it for a while and can longer. In three or four months, if you have not heard from him, write and ask for it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am nearly eighteen and I have been corresponding with a boy a little older. Suppose ought not to think that I am in love at this age, but I do, and not being sure that this boy really cares for me I suffer a great deal. I try not to let anyone know how much I think of him. I hide all the letters and read them over and over when no one sees me. Now this is what I want to ask. My mother found them when she was cleaning the attic. She read them out loud to me, and while she only meant to tease me, I never showed over anything more. I did show that I cared. I only acted hateful to mother. Now, Mrs. Thompson, do you think mother did right to do that?

I do not think that your mother did right. A mother ought to be able to judge her daughter's character by her general conduct and attitude of mind. She can learn very little through the girl's correspondence that she could not also learn by observation. It is a youth's right to receive letters the contents of which are sacred and private.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) If a boy and girl are engaged, should either of them go with other company? (2) Is it proper for a boy who is

KAISER APPEARS IN GAZETTE MOVIES

ALTHOUGH MANY PHOTOS HAVE BEEN TAKEN OF RULER, MOST INTIMATE ARE IN FILMS.

WAR IN ALL ITS PHASES

Pictures to Be Shown at Myers This Week Are Authentic in Every Respect.

No man in history, probably, has had his photograph published so frequently as has Emperor William of Germany. Drawings, paintings, cartoons and photographs showing him in almost all possible attitudes, and at every age from his birth to the present, have appeared in all magazines and newspapers of the world. The most remarkable portrayal of the German kaiser, however, was left to the "movies" to present. Through the efforts of The Gazette, a remarkable series of war pictures, including actual moving pictures of the kaiser, will be shown four times daily at the Myers Theatre for two days, beginning Saturday matinee.

Camera Two Yards Away. While the war lord reviewed thousands of marching troops, a moving picture machine less than two yards away recorded every move the monarch made. Even the expression on the faces of the troops as they filed by and gazed upon their emperor, are graphically depicted.

Of interest also will be the pictures of King Albert of Belgium, the monarch who fought a losing fight, and the admiration of all the world and the love of his subjects. The queen of Belgium, who is the acknowledged leader in Belgium to works of aid to the war's unfortunate victims, also is being shown in the pictures.

The presentation of these pictures will afford Janesville citizens a chance to see the war as it really is, in its various seats of action. Though the noise and danger will be eliminated, the drama of the war, the scenes of being shot or imprisoned, the scenes of the New York Sun and Chicago Herald. They have given the world the most vivid collection of records of the actual scenes in the war. The Gazette, through a special arrangement with the producers, was able to procure the pictures for a limited period.

War in All Its Phases.

Not only will the horrors of war be exhibited, but also the lighter phases of the conflict. Engineering feats, such as never before have been employed in warfare, are shown. These include the building of pontons, the systematic methods used in feeding and caring for thousands of prisoners, scenes from the trenches, where the soldiers prepared for a long winter's siege, and many others. The humorous, and many others. Many amusing incidents are shown. Not only the rulers of Germany and Belgium, but many personages of lesser importance, members of the nobility and army leaders who are making names for themselves in the history of the future, are shown at work. Crown Prince Rupprecht is one of these subjects.

Many of the pictures were taken during the fall of Antwerp. This fact

KNOCKED IN LAKE; GETS "WET" TWICE

Stoughton Man Finds Trip to Madison Has Two Phases—Engineer Makes Drowning Rescue.

Stoughton voted to remain in the prohibition column at the last election and Stoughton "wets" still continue to go to Madison for their refreshments as the Capital City is nearer to home than Janesville. Edgerton is tabooed for various reasons.

Tuesday Alex Swan and a companion, experiencing a feeling of thirst, made the journey to the commonwealth's seat of law and proceeded to imbibe quite freely. Alex somehow became lost from his companion, who had the railway tickets, and shortly before supper had the intuition, but no money, that it was time to return to the home port. Incidentally he began to hike.

A Milwaukee road passenger train leaves Madison at 6:55 for Janesville, and it was this train that came near ending the career of the Stoughtonite. He had just reached the tower near the railroad crossing and was on the bridge when the engine struck him. Luckily Swan was not walking inside the rails. The impact knocked him off the bridge and into the lake.

Engineer Edward Barning, well known to local railway men, saw Swan go into the water and at once went to his rescue. Apparently his bones were broken. He was taken to the general hospital at Madison.

FIVE CITIES PLAN TO STOP SPEEDING

Edgerton, Evansville, Fort Atkinson, Jefferson and Stoughton May Take Concerted Action.

If the proposal of Benjamin J. Springer, city marshal at Edgerton, in carrying out the plan of Edgerton, Evansville, Stoughton, Jefferson and Fort Atkinson will take concerted action to prevent speeding in and between these places during the coming season. Negotiations have been opened with the mayors of the several cities with the view of employing a motorcycle policeman to patrol the highways in and between the towns. The expense of employing one officer for the five towns would reduce the expense in a large degree and would be an assurance of protection to the traveling public.

Dinner Stories

A well-known metropolitan choral conductor was once holding voice trials preliminary to the organization of a colored choral club of labile singers. One of the soprano applicants was extremely reticent when asked to sing a scale. Finally the director, becoming impatient, asked: "What's the matter—don't you sing?" "Well," she hesitatingly replied, "not personally."

The Sunday was a wet one and she was allowed to accompany her parents to church. It was her first experience of that kind.

The minister was of the energetic, pulp-thumping type, and he preached from a rostrum raised in front of the people. He excelled himself this day in the thumping tactics and had worked himself up to a pitch of high excitement.

CHAPTER IV.

Planning an Awakening.

"How is our young Englishman getting along?" asked Mr. Townley a few days later on meeting Allan Rutledge. "I do not see Mr. Nelson very much. He has become a member of your church, has he not?"

"No," responded Allan. "I do not seem to be able to get him to consent to a public avowal of his faith in Christianity, but he is a regular attendant at the church and he brings to a certain extent among our young people."

"I have a peculiar interest in the young man," said Mr. Townley. "He came to Bronson at my invitation in the first place, and I feel that there is moral power in him if it could find an outlet."

"He has accepted a new position which he assumes the first of the year," answered the other. "He told me yesterday that he is going into the office of the Courier on Jan. 1, and he will be the city reporter."

"Good!" exclaimed Mr. Townley enthusiastically. "That is a better place for him than the railroad office. We shall hear from him in the newspaper world, I predict."

Having reached the People's church, Mr. Townley unlocked a side door and ushered his friend into his handsome study.

Allan Rutledge looked around in admiration.

"You have a fine den here, my brother," he exclaimed.

"Still, I am often lonely here," answered the other with sudden pensiveness. "I seem like a hermit shut up in my cell. When I want a real sermon I have to go out among the people who are fighting life's battles. Since my return from Europe I have been studying the social question with a new enthusiasm. I was formerly interested in Biblical criticism, and I learned German so that I might read the authorities in Germany more readily, but my visit to Europe has entirely changed my outlook."

"What do you mean?" asked Allan Rutledge.

"In Europe, to my surprise, I found the leading thinkers and scholars turning their attention more and more to the matter of social reform. In such matters Europe is far in advance of America. Some of the recent legislation in Germany and England would be called rank socialism with us."

"You mean the laws giving the governments control of monopolies and the legislation providing for state insurance, old age pensions, minimum wage and such like?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Townley. "I did not know you were interested in these things at all. I am delighted to know it. Do you know I think that the church must stand still until we can Christianize our social institutions in America? I have been devoting more and more thought to this phase of the work of the church. We have been spending too much time with the individual and overlooking our duty to society."

"There is truth in your statement that we need social reforms in our American life," answered Allan Rutledge earnestly. "I have studied the subject of sociology for years, and ever since my college days I have been convinced that our economic world needs to be saved. The church, the school and politics have all been democratized and Christianized in our modern life, but the business world of modern times is neither democratized nor Christianized."

"Those are exactly my beliefs," replied Mr. Townley enthusiastically. "I have just been reading in Pennsylvania, where the great steel industry has a plant. The report showed the darker side of our prosperous country." He took up a pamphlet, from which he read:

"Here are the facts about the big strike in Pennsylvania. Nine thousand men are employed in the immense plant making steel for a wealthy corporation which is paying 40 per cent dividends. These enormous profits are in part possible because more than half of these workers toil twelve hours a day, most of these working seven days in the week. Over 30 per cent of these men earn less than $1.68 for this long day of labor. Three men protested to the management against the Sunday labor. They were at once discharged, and this caused the strike. The wage scale makes the herding of men together the only method of living possible for them. Under such conditions decency is impossible, to say nothing of Christianity."

"A report like that," continued Mr. Townley, "gives rise to serious thought."

"My blood boils hottest," responded Allan Rutledge, "when I learn of the exploitation of women and children by modern industry."

"That is just what we have on a small scale here in Bronson," responded Mr. Townley quickly. "I feel there is no regeneration possible for Bronson until we have some social readjustments."

"You remember you diagnosed the spiritual condition of Bronson for me a few days after I arrived here," said Allan Rutledge, changing the subject.

"I remember our conversation very well," said the other. "Have you found my diagnosis correct?"

"Your diagnosis, according to my investigations, was absolutely correct," said Allan Rutledge, with determination. "I am now ready to apply the remedy, and I propose to begin a campaign which will result in Bronson's regeneration."

Albert Townley stared at his companion.

"What is your plan?" he asked.

"Bronson needs new men more than it needs anything else," responded Allan, with decision. "Otherwise we need an old fashioned revival of real religion. The first thing for us to do is to unite our Protestant churches in a genuine religious campaign. If you can get the other churches in Bronson to co-operate with the People's church and the Central church I will guarantee a regeneration. Do you think you can gain the co-operation of the other Protestant churches?"

"Explain your plan further," said Mr. Townley, with a perplexed look.

"If we do succeed in getting our Bronson Protestantism united what do you then propose?"

"Here is what I propose," said Allan Rutledge. "We will build a tabernacle capable of seating 10,000 people. We will not build this tabernacle on the top of any mountain, but right down in the valley among the common people. Then we shall have a strong, capable leader take charge of the situation for five or six weeks, holding meetings in the great tabernacle night after night, and covering the city with cottage prayer meetings, shop meetings, street meetings, saloon meetings and every form of Christian activity of a spiritual nature. At the end of the campaign there will be a new atmosphere in Bronson."

"Who would you get as leader of such a campaign? Will you undertake it yourself?"

"I have the leader in mind, a personal friend of mine, who was born in Iowa not far from my own birthplace."

"Whom do you mean?" asked the other.

"The Rev. William A. Sunday, better known as Billy Sunday."

"Albert Townley jumped to his feet. 'It will never do, Rutledge. I have read of some of this man's campaigns and of their success, but it is absurd to think of bringing him to Bronson. This is a peculiar community. Do you think Messrs. Graham and Marchmont would indorse such a movement?'"

"Listen to me, my brother," began Allan Rutledge, in earnest tones. "In planning out this campaign I never thought for a moment whether Graham or Marchmont or any one else would indorse it except God Almighty. Did you not assert yourself in your diagnosis that the very fact that such men as Marchmont and Graham, men without vital religion, controlled the religious organizations of Bronson, was the most damning fact in our church life?"

"You know something about Billy Sunday, I expect?" asked Allan.

"I have never met him personally," said the other, "but I have often heard him condemned by ministers and others. They say his methods and language are vulgar in the extreme."

"I have known Mr. Sunday since he was one of our national baseball stars," said Allan Rutledge, seating himself and turning to his companion. "I was only a boy then, but I remember how proud we were of our Iowa baseball champion. After his conversion I lost sight of him for some years, but when he entered the religious field I hailed him as a winner, for I knew that he had exactly what our age needs. He has courage, determination, manhood and dynamic energy. His so-called vulgarity is only the vernacular of the baseball diamond, and it is the every-day language of millions of Americans. He does not need to use this language, but he humbles himself to it in order to reach the masses and save them. His astounding success is proof of his divine commission."

After a good deal of argument and persuasion Albert Townley finally agreed to visit the other ministers in Bronson, with whom he had a large influence, and seek to unite Bronson Protestantism in a Billy Sunday campaign. Mr. Townley was surprised to find that almost unanimously the other ministers agreed that such a campaign would be supported by them.

The result was that a meeting of the ministers and some of the most spiritual men in the churches was called. The Central church was represented at this meeting by Mr. Cameron. Mr. Cameron had heard Billy Sunday and was enthusiastic in favor of the plan.

"It will be just as Dr. Rutledge says," he exclaimed. "If we arrange for a big tabernacle and invite Billy Sunday to Bronson we will shake this town from center to circumference, and we need such a shaking."

Other laymen spoke in the same strain. It was planned to present the matter to the different churches the following Sabbath. The proposed union of the Protestant forces in a spiritual campaign appealed to the individual churches of all denominations, and the ministers were astonished and pleased to find out the amount of real religious interest which had been latent in their congregations.

Allan Rutledge made a visit to a neighboring state, where Mr. Sunday was conducting a campaign, and prevailed upon him to arrange for a meeting in Bronson.

"We need you in Bronson, Billy," said Allan Rutledge, with intense earnestness, "and God needs you."

"All right," was the ex-baseball champion's characteristic remark. "Go ahead and get up the tabernacle. I'm ready to back the gang in Bronson or anywhere else. I have never back pedaled for the devil yet, and I never will."

As time went on and the preparations for the building of the immense tabernacle were begun there were signs of anxiety among certain of Bronson's citizens.

"Is this grifter, Billy Sunday, coming to Bronson?" said Bud McGree to Mr. Graham one day in the law office of Millman & Graham. Bud McGree was the uncrowned king of Bronson. He was the political boss. The man seemed to feel a sense of injured dignity that it was proposed to inaugurate a spiritual campaign without first obtaining his consent.

There was a scowl in his face. "Don't be afraid," he replied jokingly. "Sunday is nothing but a clown, and his circus performances here will not amount to anything."

"I don't know about that," said the other seriously. "I have reports from some places where he has been, and he is a dangerous man. After his campaigns cities begin to 'clean up,' as they call it, and we want none of that kind of Sunday school business in Bronson."

He spoke of the morrow without the faintest indication in his manner that it was to bring a crisis in his own affairs. His brow was clear, his eye sparkling, his serenity undisturbed. If there was a thought in his mind of Yvonne he did not betray it by a single outward manifestation. His interest was centered in the two young people and their immediate future. It would have been easy to believe, as he stood there chatting gaily, that there was no one else in all the world so far as he was concerned. Quite casually he expressed regret that poor old Dawes and Riggs were to be left behind, but of Yvonne not so much as a word.

Lydia was something of a diplomatist. She left father and son after a few minutes, excusing herself on the ground that she wished to have a good, long chat with Yvonne. She did not delay her departure, but hurried into the house, having rather adroitly provided Frederic with an opening for an intercession in behalf of his lovely stepmother. Her meaning glance was not wasted on the young man.

He lost no time in following up the advantage. "See here, father, I don't like the idea of leaving Yvonne out in the cold, so to speak. It's—it's pretty darned rough, don't you think? Down in your heart you don't blame her for what she started out to do, and after all she's only human. Whatever happened in the past—we'll, it's all in the past. She—"

Brood stopped him with an imperative gesture. "My son, I will try to explain something to you. You may be able to understand things better than I. I fell in love with her once because an influence that was her own overpowered me. There was something of your mother in her. She admits that to be true and I now believe it. Well, that something—whatever it was—is gone. It can never return. She is not the same. Yvonne is there. She is not the woman I loved two months ago. She—"

"Nor am I the boy you hated two months ago," argued Frederic. "Isn't there a parallel to be seen there, father? I am your son. She is your wife. You—"

"There never was a time when I really hated you, my son. I tried to—but that is all over. We will not rake up the ashes. As for my wife—well, I have tried to hate her. It is impossible for me to do so. She is a wonderful woman. But you must understand on the other hand that I do not love her. I did when she looked at me with your mother's eyes and spoke to me with your mother's lips. But—she is not the same."

"Give yourself a chance, dad."

"A chance? What do you mean?"

"Just this: You will come to love her for herself if only you will let go of yourself. You are trying to be hard. You—"

Again Brood interrupted. His face had gone very pale and his eyes grew dark with pain.

"You don't know what you are saying, Frederic. Let us discontinue the subject."

"I want you to be happy—I want—I shall be happy. I am happy. Have I not found out the truth? Are you not my beloved son? Are—"

"And who convinced you of all that, sir? Who is responsible for your present happiness—and mine?"

"I know, I know," exclaimed the father in some agitation.

"You'll regret it all your life if you fall her now, dad. Why, hang it all, you're not an old man. You are less than fifty. Your heart hasn't dried up yet. Your blood is still hot. And she is glorious. Give yourself a chance. You know that she's one woman in a million, and—she's yours! She has made you happy—she can make you still happier."

"No, I am not old. I am far younger than I was fifteen years ago. That's what I am afraid of—this youth I really never possessed till now. If I gave way to it now I'd—well, I would be like putty in her hands. She could go on laughing at me, trifling with me, fooling me to—"

"She wouldn't do that!" exclaimed his son hotly.

"I don't blame you for defending her. It's right that you should. I, too, defend her in a way. You are forgetting the one important condition, however. She has a point of view of her own, my son. She can never reconcile herself to the position you would put her in if I permitted you to persuade me that—"

"I can tell you one thing, father, that you ought to know—if you are so kind that you haven't discovered it for yourself. She loves you."

"My son, you are dealing with a graver mystery than you can possibly suspect—the secret heart of a woman."

"Well, I'm sure of it, father—I am absolutely sure of it."

Brood shook his head and smiled faintly. "You are very young, my boy."

"What's to become of her?—You are leaving her without a thought for her future. You—"

"I fancy she is quite capable of arranging her future. As a matter of fact, she had arranged it pretty definitely before this thing happened. Leave it to her, Frederic. It is impossible for me to take her away with us. It is not to be considered. I can't make a travesty of—"

"At any rate," pleaded Frederic, "you can assure her that the world isn't a black place in which she's got to spend—oh, you know what I'm trying to get at!"

Once more the quiet smile fitted across his father's face. "She is not the kind to find the world a black place, my boy. She will not allow it to be black."

"That's why I say she can make yours a good deal brighter for you if you'll only give yourself a chance."

"You speak of giving myself a chance. Why do you put it in that way?"

way?"

"Because it's the truth," proclaimed his son. "You've missed a good many things, father, because you never gave yourself a real, honest chance. I—"

"We'd better drop the subject, Frederic," said Brood, an abrupt change in his manner. "There is nothing more to be said. Matters have shaped themselves. We will not attempt to alter them. I cannot reconstruct myself in a day, my boy. And now, let us talk of Lydia. She—"

"All right, but bear this in mind: Lydia loves Yvonne, and she's heartbroken. Now we'll talk about her, if you like."

Lydia had as little success in her rather more tactful interview with Yvonne. The incomprehensible creature, comfortably ensconced in the great library couch, idly blew rings of smoke toward the ceiling and as idly disposed of her future in so far as it applied to the immediate situation.

"Thank you, dear. I am satisfied. Everything has turned out as it should. The wicked enchantress has been foiled and virtue triumphs. Don't be unhappy on my account, Lydia. It will not be easy to say good-by to you and Frederic, but—la, la! What are we to do? Now, please don't speak of it again. Hearts are easily mended. Look at my husband—at—e! He has had his heart made over from top to bottom—in a rough crucible, it's true, but it's as good as new, you'll admit. In a way, I am made over, too. I am happier than I've ever been in my life. I'm in love with my husband, I'm in love with you and Frederic and I am more than ever in love with myself. So there! Don't feel sorry for me. I shall end my virtuous days in peace, but I shall never sit-by-the-fire, my dear. Tomorrow you will go away, all of you. I shall have the supreme joy of knowing that not one of you will ever forget me or my deeds, good and bad. Who knows? I am still young."

"I'VE FOUND JUST THE HOUSE I WANT"

Two families were about to move and the lady of each house knew just what she wanted in the way of a home.

They met the other day and the first thing Mrs. X burst forth with "I've found just the house I want."

"How did you find it?" asked Mrs. Z.

"Why, by watching the Gazette and reading the want ads," replied the first lady. "You know I read those little ads every night whether I want anything or not. You just try it yourself and if you can not find the house you want, why put in an ad yourself. Then you will be sure to get it."

"I'll just do that," said Mrs. Z.

We hope she was not disappointed. Everyone should read the little advertisements on this page. And if you do not see what you want, advertise for it.

GERMANS HAVE UNIVERSAL SPIRIT OF PATRIOTISM AND CONFIDENCE.

DETERMINED TO WIN

National Sense of Discipline Has Enabled Germany to Put Raw Recruits in the Field as Skilled Soldiers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, April 15.—All observers of Germany, her army and her people, under the stress of war, praise the universal spirit of patriotism and determination to win. An English "eyewitness" pictures the German people in the London Daily Mail, a copy of which has just reached here, as follows:

"The plain truth is that, although the enemy's effectiveness in the west is much reduced in comparison with that possessed by him some months ago and although our losses increased, he is still holding an enormous extent of front here while carrying out operations on a huge scale in the east and in the north. The gigantic efforts on his part of weakening are yet visible in the morale of the German troops taken as a whole.

Wholly Efficient Training.
"In any estimate of the present value of our enemies as fighting men we must not lose sight of the national sense of discipline which forms part of the earliest education of every German. It enables them to gain results with raw troops which among us could only be gained after months of continuous training and enables them likewise to maintain an extremely high level of efficiency even after suffering great losses in the commissioned and noncommissioned ranks. Obedience has become ingrained in the people. It is in the very fiber of the nation.

It is difficult for English people to realize what a national war means to a continental nation. Every man, woman and child is doing his or her part. When the men go to fight the women and children carry on their work at home. It would seem utterly incredible to them that any individual should cease working for the common good in order to gain any personal advantage of increase and of leisure and still more that any one should give a thought to the ordinary pleasures and enjoyments of peace.

German Spirit in Struggle.
"Such is the spirit in which Germany is facing this struggle. This confidence will only be overthrown and the morale of the troops will only be shaken by the consciousness of crushing defeat in the field. But this end can only be attained by ever increasing pressure of vast numbers of men and guns throughout the coming months.

Juan Pujol, special correspondent for the Madrid A. B. C. temporarily stationed in Belgium, visited recently the German firing line in Flanders. In his newspaper, a copy of which has just reached New York, under the heading "The Spirit of the German Army," he tells how, returning in an automobile from Brussels, a French flying machine dropped an explosive within fifty yards of them. Pujol continues:

"I had a bitter taste in my mouth and the irresistible desire to make a jump out of the car about what happened. But the captain and Lieutenant von Freyhold seemed so cold and unperturbed about it that I was ashamed of my impulse to do so. That was not on the program," my escorts said. This number was supplied by the French. Come, let us see what effect it had.

German Officer's Influence.
"As I heard them talking that way I understood the tremendous influence that these men have upon life in the field and upon those great masses of discipline in their manner. There was no bragging in their manner, no exaggeration in their mental poise. Their words expressed only quiet composure and cold bloodedness. Like them, one could come to regard the dropping of shells in the immediate vicinity as something so natural that it was not even worth while speaking of, even in joke.

"And since fear is a contagious emotion the contagion ceases wherever these men are. As the result of inherent military propensities or by a laborious training of the will, not a single muscle moves on their faces, nor do they grow pale even at the most critical moments.

Show Strength of Sacrifice.
"There are the highest and noblest gifts of the mind—the ability to keep to an ideal in the face of the strongest temptation, the renunciation of their own personalities to benefit a large unit, the determination to await the hand of death with all the calmness of inner conviction.

"Should Germany fall, which is improbable, the world would lose a tremendous moral force."

Colonel Mueller, the correspondent of the Swiss New Zurich Gazette, describes in a copy of his paper just received here a trip through the Lorraine area of war. His article in part reads as follows:

"The Lorraine army corps consists of inhabitants of all parts of the empire. That testifies to the unity and concord of the German people, a unity unprecedented in the annals of modern history. The enemies of Germany have made a miscalculation. Before the outbreak of war they hoped to derive advantages from disagreements between the north and south German states. All troop units are complete. Deficiencies are supplemented by fresh trained volunteers and recruits.

All Classes in Army.
"Beardless youths and old men who have become gray in the service are side by side. The temper and disposition of the men are splendid. Old and young are resolute, confident of victory, enterprising and eager for battle. Officers and men trust implicitly in their commanders. No less confident is the army in the economic efficiency of the country and the organization of its resources. That confidence adds to the consciousness of military strength.

"Yet nobody is ignorant of the tremendous task, both military and economic, which Germany has yet to fulfill. Military duty and persistence animate all from the highest officer to the simple landsturm man.

Troops' Welfare Guarded.
"Special attention is paid to physical culture and food problems. The authorities have the welfare of the troops at heart. Even the exchange of military salute between superiors and inferiors proves good comradeship and mutual confidence. Discipline and duty do not suffer by it, every offense being punished deservedly."

Persistent.

The croaker generally has little to say, but is willing to keep on saying it.—Indianapolis Star.

WOMEN OF WARRING NATIONS TO MEET AT HAGUE CONGRESS

Great Britain and Germany Will Send Delegations to Big Peace Conference of Women.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Hague, Netherlands, April 15.—Many well-known women from Germany and the British Isles will meet at the International Congress of Women on April 28 notwithstanding that their countries are at war, and contrary to reports that German women had decided not to attend.

A list of German and British women who have expressed their intention of being present either as individual members or as delegates of societies contains the following names:

GERMANY: Fraulein Anna Edinger, Frankfurt-on-Main; Frau Professor Dr. Heidsieck, Coblenz; Frau Dr. Lung-Haesch, Ernst, Gantling, near Munich; Frau Margarethe L. Selenka, Berlin; Frau Marie Wegner, Breslau; Frau Johana Birnbaum-Kadisch, Magdeburg; Dr. Anita Augsburg, Munich; Fraulein Lida Gustave Haymann, Munich; Frau Frida Perlen, Stuttgart; and Frau E. von Schlumberger, Stuttgart.

BRITISH ISLES: Miss Mary E. O'Sullivan, London; Mrs. Elizabeth Mary Southey, Brighton; Miss E. Sylvia Pankhurst, London; Miss C. Drake, London; Miss L. Lind-a-Hedge, London; Miss Gore-Booth, Miss Esther G. Roper, and Mrs. O. Despard, London; Mrs. Crossfield, Cambridge; Miss May Watson, Araroway, Scotland; Miss Elizabeth Helen Ford, London; Miss Margaret Ashton, Manchester; Miss Sturge, Birmingham; Miss E. L. Vorych, Richmond, Surrey; Miss Marie C. Stoney, London; Miss Violet Vanbrugh, London; Miss Frances E. Newton, London, with Syrian friend; Miss Norah L. Smyth, London; Miss Crystal Macmillan, Miss Marshall, Miss Courtney, Miss Leaf, Mrs. Wilson, and Miss Isabel Ford.

As far as is known here the United States is to be represented by a large contingent of women, among whom are Miss Jane Addams, and a number of members of the Peace Party.

There will be a few delegates from Austria-Hungary, and a few from Belgium. Among the neutral countries, Denmark, Italy and Switzerland will be well represented. The difficulties of French women getting to the Congress are almost insurmountable, and it is doubtful whether that country will be represented by more than two or three delegates.

One of the resolutions to be placed before the Congress will demand that the governments of the world will no longer allow private ownership of armaments.

"Now," said the great magician, rolling up his sleeves to show that he had no concealed mechanism to deceive the eye, "I shall attempt my never-failing experiment." Taking from his pocket a five-dollar bill, he said: "I shall cause this bill to disappear utterly." So saying, he lent it to a friend.
